Expensive Planes Handled by Youngsters

By GEORGE MCARTHUR
Associated Press Writer

VIETNAM (AP) — You put a $5-million airplane into the hands of one young pilot and you never know how he will act until the first day he's shot at.

Barely 23, big and easy-talking, Ens. Jim Daddson had two years to think about it while he went through the Navy's training program. Then, when the carrier America joined the 7th Fleet, the youngest pilot on the ship was in the first strike against North Vietnam.

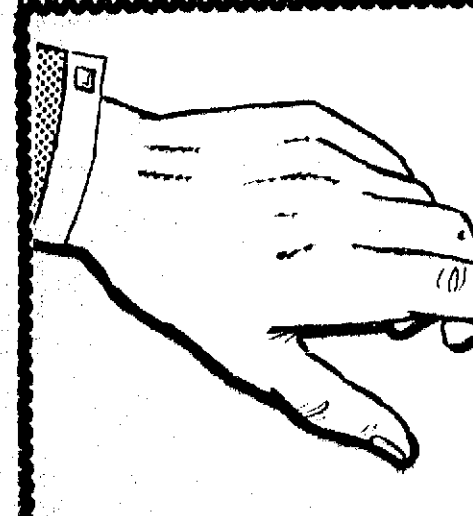

That was three weeks ago and Daddson is now a veteran, joking in the squadron's ready room and casually settled into the hazardous routine of a war-time cruise. He flies the A6 Intruder, the most sophisticated, electronics-packed jet the Navy has, and is proud that out of 76 men in his flight class he was the only one to get an Intruder.

"I knew I was being trained as a weapons system," he says. "I didn't mind it one bit. I wanted to get over here and do my part. Peace—sure I hope we can have peace. But until that time I think that what I am doing is right."

How did he feel on that first mission?

"Well, it's hard to explain," he recalled, waving his hands in the air.

Kennedy's Staff Hates to Leave

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — In Suite 3327 of the New Senate Office Building, the stacks of neatly labeled cartons are growing higher. Someday all the papers and books will be packed. Then the people who work there will have to leave.

But they don't like to think about that day.

For members of Robert F. Kennedy's Senate staff, ties with the past are still too strong to permit intrusion by thoughts of the future.

Melody Miller is a receptionist in Suite 3327. She had worked for Kennedy since his election in 1964.

"Our lives were always predicated on his needs," she said. We're not ready to start thinking about pounding the pavement looking for jobs. We're not even ready to accept the reality that we'll have to go to work somewhere else."

Since Robert Kennedy died from an assassin's bullet on June 6—two weeks ago Thursday—more than 100 offers of employment for his staff have been received at the Senate office. In addition, many members of Congress have offered jobs to individual staff members.

So far, none of the offers has been accepted.

"I worked for a man in whom I believed totally," said Hugh McDonald, an assistant press aide. "Now there's this void. I feel so empty. I just couldn't go to work for anybody else now."

There has been speculation this week that Kennedy's chief press aide, Frank Mankiewicz, would oppose Mayor Sam Yorty of Los Angeles in that city's 1970 election. Mankiewicz said in an interview that "friends" had suggested it to him.

"I find it very flattering," he said. "But I haven't begun to think about that sort of thing. I certainly don't turn it down out of hand but it's much too early to make any decision."

Administrative assistant Joe Dolan and legislative assistant Peter Edelman aren't thinking about the future yet, nor is speech writer Adam Walinsky.

"I worked for Bob Kennedy," Walinsky said. "It was intensely personal. I couldn't do it for anyone else. I don't think I could ever be the same with anyone else. I just don't know what I'll do."

Kennedy's personal secretary of 11 years, Angie Novello, spends most of her days going through books and papers.

"I want to make sure that everything is all sorted out right so that if anything is ever done with them, they'll be in order," she said.

She too has given very little thought to another job.

In Kennedy's private office, there is a box of papers on the tan leather couch labeled: "RFK handwritten misc notes. Lady Harlech's funeral, Christening of the USS John F. Kennedy. Letters to and from Fred Dutton '65-'68. Letters to and from J. K. Galbraith '65-'68. Letters to and from White House."

A few specks of dust have gathered on the big leather covered desk.

Pictures of the Kennedy family still hang on all the walls. Against a closet door rests a child's drawing of a yacht.

Nobody has yet removed the big red and white valentine that is propped up on the window ledge. It reads, "To Bobby: The best godfather on Valentine's Day." It is from Caroline Kennedy, the late President John F. Kennedy's daughter.

When the private telephone rings from the Capitol switchboard, nobody answers. They all know it's just a wrong number.

Remember the Pueblo, a Wife Cries

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Writer

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "Remember the Pueblo!" That's the battle cry of Mrs. Rose Bucher, wife of the skipper of the captured U.S. intelligence vessel which has been in Communist North Korean hands for nearly six months.

Mrs. Bucher believes that her husband, Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, and the 81 other American crewmen will be freed but she vigorously protests the slow pace of diplomatic effort to win their release.

"The Navy really doesn't have anything to do about it. The State Department is responsible. If our military leaders had been in control, we'd have the ship back."

Mrs. Bucher, who has two teen-age sons, is critical of the Defense Department for refusing to give her a list of crewmen's families. But she has managed to contact about three-fourths of the families.

"I feel an obligation as the commanding officer's wife to give words of encouragement. We give each other encouragement. It's our son, our husband or our loved one."

"The Department of Defense said it was a matter of policy and would be invading people's privacy. I'm sure some don't want their name and address released. But others say it's okay, I guess they thought I was a rabble-rouser who would descend on Washington. Have we become so inhuman that people's feelings and human lives mean nothing?"

"The State Department has asked not only me but other families as well to 'minimize publicity.' The reason, they say, is we make noise and we make it more difficult on our husband or son."

"If I believed that, I wouldn't do it. If they can show me proof, then I will shut up."

Mrs. Bucher said she hates to see the Pueblo seizure become a political issue in the upcoming elections.

"But there's no other way. The Democrats are so embarrassed they're hanging their heads. Republicans are picking it up."

"Those men on the ship are Republicans, Democrats, what have you. Many on the boat aren't even old enough to vote. Some are just 21 and could vote for the first time. Are they going to get absentee ballots?"

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — "CBS Reports" dug boldly into a touchy, controversial subject in its Tuesday night program, "The Business of Religion." The hour show raised the question of tax in churches—Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and all others—which always have been exempt.

The program presented the question from the points of view of churchmen and government officials. It took public, congressional and clerical opinion polls on various kinds of tax exemption. In addition, it undertook some difficult, original research.

Narrator Charles Kuralt opened the program by noting that the practice goes back 3,700 years to the Egyptians who exempted priests from tithes and taxes, and that it never oc-

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

OVER-EAGER GAL NO THREAT — PROBABLY

Dear Helen: We've been married 16 years and have five fine children. I know my husband is wonderful, but other women know it, too. Years ago, he confessed one infidelity. No repeats.

He is an avid gardener and keeps busy outside when he's home. Now my neighbor is an unmarried woman. Lately, she has started working in her garden every day, but only when my husband is around. At first I thought it was a coincidence, but the minute he walks out the back door, curred to the Founding Fathers to tax churches.

Then the problem was posed in its simplest terms: Churches are rich; the government—local, state and federal—needs money; churchmen hesitate to discuss taxation because it might have a crippling effect on the institutions, and government officials hesitate because they do not want to appear to be anti-religious.

The program presented some awesome statistics: More than 350,000 churches; an estimated 130-million church members; week-by-week religious contributions estimated by a former Internal Revenue Service head at between $7½ and 8 billion a year, and tax exempt church property estimated at $79.5 billion, equal to almost double the assessed valuation of New York City.

To the question of whether the church should be taxed, most of the eminent churchmen of many denominations gave qualified affirmative answers.

There was general agreement that church buildings, schools, hospitals and homes for the aged should be tax free, but that the business and commercial interests of churches—real estate, hotels, manufacturing companies acquired by gift or purchase—should be liable for income taxes as are the incomes of their competitors.

The program was jammed with statistics and facts, and it reflected the varying points of view by moving from interviews with churchmen to tax experts and real estate specialists.

It ran into trouble arriving at money totals partly because some of the most important figures are not disclosed and partly because some totals have never been compiled.

"The CBS news survey clearly indicates that the time has come for a full and frank discussion of this subject in America," concluded Kuralt. "This broadcast has been our attempt to open that discussion."

And it seems certain that the hour, despite its tone of cool impartiality, will cause some waves.

Since it consisted primarily of assorted interviews, it did not add up to much in visual terms. But it was an important and even brave program and therefore a valuable public service.

there she is, watering, pulling grass, etc. As she wears a negligee over her nightgown, when she bends down—well, sometimes my husband's hoe hits a flower instead of a weed.

Her other obvious attempts to attract him include borrowing all kinds of tools, asking his advice, acting like the sweet little helpless female.

I keep wondering if she's such an ardent gardener, why doesn't she work in the mornings when it's cool—and my guy is off at work?

I know he loves me and his family and wouldn't intentionally do anything to hurt us, but a man can be tempted, and she's tempting.

Am I making too much of this? — WORRIED

Dear Worried: Probably. Happily married men seldom fall for desperate women—and any gal who gardens in a negligee at 5 p.m. is either desperate, or a frump.

Work outdoors with your husband, making sure some of the kids are with you, this to show her what a compatible family you are. Mainly, turn the situation into an inside joke at your house, but never laugh at HIM. Just smile sympathetically about the poor thing next door who can't resist his charms. — H

Dear Helen: About the neighbor lady who brought in the dinner because this man told her he was sick when he was really hungover, as usual:

You aren't very perceptive, Helen, if you didn't realize that dame was wearing a halo of pure brass. She just wanted to make the wife look silly. The dinner said loud and clear, "You're a lousy mate or your husband wouldn't be staying out until 4 a.m., and I could do a lot better by him!"

I had a husband like this man for 30 years. He needed me into screaming at him, just so the neighbors would hear and feel sorry for him. He had everyone thinking I was a she-devil, but no one knew the insults and quiet cruelty I suffered. To others, he was an angel. Oh how he loved to suffer and get sympathy from other women!

Why don't you see through these catty females? And blister these no-good husbands! You seem to take the man's side, when there's any doubt about who is guilty. For example, you told the wife who was jealous of her daughter-in-law that it was probably over-active imagination. That old buzzard was as guilty as a pup. Anyone could see it, from reading her letter. — DOWN WITH MEN

Dear Down: Not "anyone could see it, friend: Just someone whose reactions are colored by her own personal experience. You're sour on all men (and most women) because you got a lemon. I give 'em a fair shake because I didn't. Come to think of it, my reactions are just as affected by the experience as are yours, except I'm prejudiced IN FAVOR of people. I kinda like it that way. — H

Search on for Yachtsman in Rubber Dinghy

By COLIN FROST

Associated Press Sports Writer LONDON (AP) — Ships and aircraft scoured the Atlantic today for a French yachtsman drifting in a rubber dinghy after abandoning his yacht on the singlehanded trans-Atlantic race.

As the search went on, bitter argument was revived among yachtsmen over multi-hulled craft, many saying they're unsafe.

Jean De Kat, 27, messaged Tuesday that he was abandoning his 50-foot trimaran Yaksha in heavy seas about 600 miles west of Ireland. He reported his mast and rudder were broken and one of the yacht's three parallel hulls was torn away.

Weather ships, freighters, the 25,000-ton liner Empress of Britain and British Atlantic Patrol planes from northern Ireland converged on the spot. The first report of wreckage came from the Dutton, a A.S. Navy ballistic missile support ship which has the latest search and navigational aids.

Search experts directing the Royal Air Force's Shackleton Patrol planes rated De Kat's survival chance as good provided visibility held and he had been able to get his dinghy's cover up.

Yaksha is one of 13 multi-hulled craft — twin-hulled catamarans and three-hulled trimarans — among the 35 original entries.

Their great virtue is speed. Even in moderate breezes a multihull can reach up to 20 knots because instead of heeling it stays upright and the sails catch up in the wind.

But in heavy weather the risk of capsizing is high and the strain on the bridge between the parallel hulls immense.

Conventional yachts, though their speed seldom exceeds 10 knots, are less prone to capsize. Even if they are knocked down by squalls their heavy ballast keels are usually enough to right them again.

John Pymon, technical secretary of the Royal Yachting Association, said:

"The traditional yacht may break its mast and rigging when it capsizes but it usually rights itself and leaves its crew with some shelter and control."

"But a cat or a tri in the same situation will probably stay upside down and break up. These beasts are ultimately unstable if pushed to the extreme."

Losses among multihull enthusiasts have been heavy. Arthur Piver, leading American designer, disappeared in a trimaran while qualifying for the current race. South African designer Tom Corkhill was lost in the South Atlantic two years ago.

Wondering Who's Next

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Now that Grady Hatton and Gene Mauch have walked the plank, the baseball futures are wondering who will be the next to go.

With four new jobs opening up next season at Montreal, Kansas City, Seattle and San Diego, the job possibilities are brighter than usual.

Mauch already has been mentioned in some circles as a possibility for San Diego and Joe Adcock, let out last year at Cleveland, is supposed to be set to move up with Seattle from minors to majors.

Taking the Tuesday morning standings as a guide, here is a rundown on the status of the current managerial crop:

National League
Red Schoendienst, St. Louis—Working on a one-year contract despite leading the Cards to the world championship last fall. Red Birds leading the league by a comfortable margin despite serious slumps by key hitters.

Luman Harris, Atlanta—Hired to succeed Billy Hitchcock last fall. Long time confidante of Paul Richards, the vice president in charge of baseball operations. Has Braves in race and should be secure.

Herman Frank, San Francisco—Has best winning record of any manager in the league with three straight second place finishes. Operates on year-to-year basis. In strong position to finish second again unless Cards alter.

Walter Alston, Los Angeles—Waiter almost goes with the franchise. In his 15th year as Dodger skipper. Thanks to Don Drysdale has club in race and will continue to get new contracts as long as he wants them.

Bob Skinner, Philadelphia—Just arrived from San Diego with job assured through 1969 and fine minor league record to back him up.

Leo Durocher, Chicago—They tore up his original three-year contract and gave him a new two-year deal that runs through 1969. Under Leo the Cubs have looked more like a ball club although not up to startling surprises of last summer.

Gl. Hodges, New York—Could be manager of the year. In first year of three-year contract running through 1970, he has pulled the Mets out of basement while developing fine young pitching staff.

Dave Bristol, Cincinnati—Sore-armed pitching staff that forced him to shuffle starting rotation has contributed to slow start. A solid baseball man with extensive minor league experience, he is set through 1969.

Larry Shepard, Pittsburgh—Organization man whose main job was to be straightening out pitching staff. Found club's best hitters in puzzling slump but beginning to find old spark. Given one-year contract when hired last fall to succeed Harry Walker.

Harry Walker, Houston—Back again after a brief period as batting instructor for the Astros. Was the available man when last-place situation made Grady Hatton expendable.

Mayo Smith, Detroit—Just missed last year and threatens to run away with it this time. Got a two-year contract when he took over for the late Chuck Dressen at the end of 1966 season.

Houston Scores a Double Win

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer
Helping hands gave Cleveland's Sam McDowell and Baltimore's Tom Phoebus the means to an end. Helping themselves got the Washington Senators nowhere.

Stan Williams pitched a perfect ninth inning to nail McDowell's 4-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox and Pete Richert protected Phoebus' 3-2 over Oakland in the ninth as the Indians and Orioles pulled out of embarrassing tailspins Tuesday night.

The Senators exploded for eight runs in the last two innings at Minnesota, twice overtaking the torrid Twins, but still came up on the short end of a 9-3 count that ran their losing string to seven games.

First place Detroit edged Boston 2-1 and California subdued the New York Yankees 3-1 behind rookie Tom Murphy in two American League games.

Houston swept a doubleheader from the New York Mets 3-2 and 6-5; Philadelphia shelled San Francisco twice 10-2 and 9-1; Cincinnati slugged Atlanta 7-5; St. Louis nipped the Chicago Cubs 1-0 and Pittsburgh trimmed Los Angeles 3-2 in 10 innings in National League play.

McDowell, Cleveland's southpaw strikeout king, braked the Indians' skid after seven straight losses, striking out seven and yielding six hits before giving way to Williams in the ninth. McDowell, 7-5, had a four-hit shutout until the Sox scored in the eighth on a walk and singles by Ken Berry and Wayne Causey.

The Indians did all their scoring in the sixth against Gary Peters, Max Alvis' two-run single capping the rally.

"That was the most important game of the season," said McDowell. "Now we're ready to roll. After all, we scored four runs tonight. That's almost unbelievable."

Phoebus, 6-6, allowed six hits and fanned 10 until the ninth, when he was lifted with nobody out and the tying run on second base. Richert got Danny Cater to line into a double play, choking off the rally and bringing the Orioles' five-game losing streak to an end.

Jim Nash stopped Baltimore on three hits until the seventh, when Frank Robinson singled and Brooks Robinson homered, tying it 2-2.

Andy Etchebarren led off the Orioles' eighth with a single, moved to second on Phoebus' sacrifice and third on Don Buford's single before scoring the tie-breaker as Fred Valentine forced Buford at second.

Washington, trailing 4-0 with two out in the eighth, struck for six runs—two on Frank Howard's 23rd homer and the last three on Paul Casanova's first of the year.

But Ted Uhlender slammed a three-run homer in the bottom of the inning, giving the Twins a 7-6 edge. Back came the Senators on RBI singles by Ken McMullen and Mike Epstein in the ninth for an 8-7 lead.

Then Rich Rollins singled with one out in the Twins' ninth and Frank Quilici tripled him home before scoring the winning run as Cesar Tovar grounded to second baseman Bernie Allen, who bobbed the ball and missed his chance for a play at the plate.

Quilici, surfacing for the first time since he played a key role in the Twins 1965 pennant drive, has stroked eight hits—five of them for extra bases—in 22 at-bats, a .364 clip.

The Tigers rolled to the 12th victory in their last 15 starts behind Earl Wilson, who got ninth inning help from Pat Dobson and beat Boston for the seventh time in eight decisions since the Red Sox dealt him to Detroit two years ago.

Jim Northrup doubled home a first inning run off loser Jose Santiago, then singled in the sixth and eventually scored on a single by Willie Horton.

The Red Sox closed in on Ken Harrelson's run-scoring single after Dobson replaced Wilson in the ninth. Harrelson took third on a single by Reggie Smith, but was thrown out at the plate on Rico Petrocelli's tap back to Dobson.

The reliever then fanned pinch hitters Dalton Jones and Jerry Adair to wrap it up.

Murphy, a 22-year-old right-hander making his second major league start, stopped the Yankees on four hits and struck out five.

Cards Keep Right on Winning

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
Harry Walker and Bob Skinner, baseball's newest managers, did double-takes Tuesday night but it was the New York Mets and San Francisco Giants who couldn't believe their eyes.

The Houston Astros, who had lost six straight games and fallen deep into the National League cellar, made Walker's first day a rousing success by sweeping a two-night doubleheader from the Mets 3-2 and 6-5.

Skinner, who succeeded Gene Mauch as Philadelphia skipper on Sunday, got his first two victories as the Phillies welcomed the Giants in a two-night 10-2 and 9-1.

Elsewhere, league-leading St. Louis edged the Chicago Cubs 1-0, Cincinnati defeated Atlanta 7-5 and Pittsburgh nipped Los Angeles in 10 innings 3-2.

In the American League, Detroit turned back Boston 2-1, Baltimore got by Oakland 3-2, Cleveland whipped the Chicago White Sox 4-1, Minnesota outslugged Washington 9-8 and California downed the New York Yankees 3-1.

"You can't do a lot of things at this stage," Walker said after replacing Grady Hatton at the Houston helm Tuesday afternoon. One of the things the Astros have almost always been able to do in the seven years of their existence is beat the Mets.

They won the opener on Jim Wynn's seventh-inning homer and took the nightcap on Bob Watson's seventh-inning sacrifice fly after blowing a 5-0 lead. Ironically, Watson had replaced Wynn after the Houston slugger aggravated a groin injury.

Denny Lemaster hurled a six-hitter in the opener, fanning 10, and rookie Jim Ray picked up his first major league victory in the second game with six innings of shutout relief.

"If all had gone well with the club we'd all have been happier, myself included, to keep things just as they were," said Walker, who was the Astros' batting coach and a close friend of Hatton's.

Walker previously piloted the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates. The latter club fired him last July and he joined the Astros four days later.

Skinner, like Walker a former hard-hitting big league outfielder, was managing the Phillies' San Diego farm team in the Pacific Coast League when he was tapped to replace Mauch. He lost his debut to the Dodgers but looked on in delight Tuesday night as the Phils pounded out 13 hits in each game, posted their first doubleheader sweep since last August and climbed into third place.

Southpaw Chris Short and Woody Fryman went the route and batted in two runs apiece. Richie Allen who had his troubles with Mauch, and Cookie Rojas both slugged a pair of homers. The Phils salted away the first game with six runs in the fifth inning and scored four in the ninth for the nightcap for a 5-0 lead.

Mack Jones turned on his former Atlanta teammates by crashing a two-run homer in the ninth inning that powered the Reds past the Braves. Pete Rose cracked five straight hits for the Reds, including three doubles, while rookie catcher Johnny Bench batted in two runs with a homer and double.

Bobby Tolan's first homer of the season and Nelson Briles' eight-hit pitching carried the Cardinals past the Cubs. The Cards increased their lead to 5½ games over Atlanta in winning the 17th time in their last 21 games.

Matty Alou's run-scoring single in the 10th inning scored Maury Wills from second base and gave Pittsburgh its seventh straight win and put the Pirates in a virtual tie for sixth place.

Don Drysdale, the Dodger starter, left the game after seven innings with a 2-1 lead and a pulled back muscle. Willie Star-gell's mammoth homer, his 12th, tied the game 2-2 in the eighth and came off Jim Brewer.

The Missions scored all the runs they needed in the second inning when two men crossed the plate on two wild pitches and a single by Tom Simon.

Palmer Seems Hopeful in Canadian Meet

TORONTO (AP) — A disastrous performance in the U.S. open that included a round of 79 has not diminished Arnold Palmer's image in this city where he posted his first major victory in the Canadian Open in 1955.

Palmer arrived here Tuesday to practice for this year's Open, scheduled for Thursday through Sunday, and at least 200 admirers were on hand.

Someone asked Palmer if he would have preferred to drop out of the U.S. Open for the final round in which he shot 79.

"Hell, yes. I could think of 80 things I'd rather have done than that final round," he said. "But I felt it was the best thing for myself and for the game of golf to keep going."

He said his troublesome hip isn't bothering him much at the moment and he intends to play for the next few weeks before going overseas for the British Open.

He said he is hitting the ball well, but his putting is rusty.

"When one part of your game is weak, you push the other parts," he said. "Before you know it, the whole ball of wax is out of kilter."

Royal Edges Broyles in Tournament

CHEROKEE VILLAGE, Ark. (AP)—Darrell Royal of the University of Texas took a one-stroke victory over Frank Broyles of the University of Arkansas Tuesday in the Coaches Invitational golf tournament.

Royal shot 76 on the final round of the 36-hole tournament for a total score of 154. Broyles shot a 79. He had led Royal by two strokes after the opening round Monday.

The victory was a sweet one for Royal, who maintains a friendly but vigorous personal rivalry with Broyles both on and off the football field. He has failed to win in three previous appearances here. Broyles was defending champion.

Ben Martin of the Air Force Academy, playing in his first tournament, finished third with 180.

Harry King, Associated Press, Little Rock, won a special division for sportswriters for the second year in a row with a score of 156. He defeated Allen Gilbert of the Fayetteville Northwest Arkansas Times by three strokes.

Player Is Released by Patriots

BOSTON (AP) — Linebacker Tom Addison, co-captain and player representative of the Boston Patriots, has been given his outright release after eight years with the American Football League club.

Coach Mike Holovak said that Addison's option was not renewed, enabling him to become a free agent and make the best possible deal if he decides to continue his playing career.

Holovak said Dr. Thomas Dorgan, the Patriots' team physician, reported Addison would risk further knee damage as a player. Addison, 32, has undergone two operations on his left knee.

Arkansas Woman Wins Opener

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)— Medalist Dorothy Gernain of Blytheville, representing Southern Illinois, scored a 2 and 1 victory over Jan Crow of Arizona State Tuesday in the opening round of the women's National Collegiate golf tournament.

Miss Gernain's second round opponent today was Carol Semple of Hollins College, a 3 and 2 victor over Kathy Hite of Introl College Tuesday.

Star Player for Chiefs Is Killed

URBANA, Mo. (AP) — A Kansas City Chiefs' American Football League player, attempting to get his military obligation out of the way before the start of practice sessions, was fatally injured Tuesday in a highway accident near this southwestern Missouri community.

The victim was identified by the Missouri National Guard as Bruce McLenna, a 26-year-old fullback.

McLenna signed with the Detroit Lions of the National Football League after graduating from Hillsdale, Mich., College. He was traded to the Baltimore Colts and the New Orleans Saints before signing with the Chiefs last year.

A guard spokesman said McLenna had received permission to train with another unit, since his unit wouldn't go to camp until after the Chiefs' training camp opened next month.

He was enroute from Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., to Camp Clark at Nevada, Mo., when his military vehicle and a civilian car sideswiped, the spokesman said.

Says Dislike for Fulbright Is General

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Bobby K. Haynes, a Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, returned from a trip to South Vietnam Tuesday night and charged that Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., is generally disliked over there "from the U.S. Embassy down."
"He has blood on his hands," Haynes said. "He is a thorn in our side."
Haynes, one of three Democrats opposing Fulbright's re-election bid, spent three days in Vietnam. He said morale of American troops there is high and smuggling of American supplies is under control but that a military coup against the South Vietnamese government appears imminent.

Haynes, who has been critical of Fulbright's opposition to escalation of the war and bombing of North Vietnam, said when he left Arkansas that he wanted to check into reports of black market activity in Vietnam.
"Apparently the black market is a thing of the past," he said in an airport interview. "There are tighter controls over supplies now, and only Americans are working on the docks."
Haynes said that soldiers in Vietnam feel that politicians have let them down and most of them consider the Paris peace talks "a bunch of h-g-wash" that will have no influence on the outcome of the war.

Takes Advantage of Hospitality

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—An employee at the hotel where the Southern Governors Conference is being held took advantage of host Gov. Robert McNair's hospitality Tuesday.
Security agents arrested the man after seeing him "tip toe suspiciously out of the governor's hospitality room. He was charged with petty larceny for lifting a bottle of whisky."
Associate Municipal Judge I. M. Goldberg suspended sentence, saying "Who would have ever thought that our governor would have liquor in his hospitality room?"

'Solidarity' Day in the Poor March

By AUSTIN SCOTT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of Americans began pouring into Washington today to show their support for the Poor People's Campaign and its demands that the government do more to abolish poverty.

The organizers of "Solidarity Day" predicted 40,000 persons would gather around the tall, marble spire of the Washington Monument, making today's demonstration by far the largest in the six-weeks of the poor people's encampment in the nation's capital.

Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr., widow of the slain civil rights leader who conceived the campaign, said Tuesday her husband thought of it as "America's last chance to solve our problems nonviolently."

King delivered his famous "I have a dream" speech from the Lincoln Memorial during the 1963 civil rights march. That speech served as the inspiration for today's demonstration.

Despite promises from campaign leader The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy that there would be no civil disobedience and marchers would conduct themselves in "the finest nonviolent tradition," law enforcement officials took no chances.
About 4,300 police and national guardsmen were on hand, most of them deployed along the half-mile line of march from the monument past Resurrection City to the Lincoln Memorial.

Popularity of Castro at Low Point

By FENTON WHEELER

HAVANA (AP)—Signs saying, "Gracias, Fidel," popped up in Havana as Castro and his band of bearded guerrillas made their triumphant entry into the capital 9½ years ago. "Ninety-nine per cent of the people were behind him," an ex-Castro fan recalls.

The prime minister's popularity has gone up and down since. Evidence now indicates it is at its lowest point since he chased dictator Fulgencio Batista out of the country in 1959.
There seems little doubt that discontent today is more serious than government officials acknowledge. The middle ground of Cubans, people who could be identified in the United States as independent voters, are tired of rationing, tired of promises and tired of more restrictions. Their view of what the government is trying to do has become wrapped in confusion, disappointment, propaganda and hard times.

Nothing to Do, So He Found Comet

BISHOP, Tex. (AP)—A 16-year-old Bishop high school junior who "didn't have anything else to do this summer" set out to find a new comet.

Clark Whitaker is the youngest person credited with discovering a new comet.

The Whitaker-Thomas comet, spotted by Mark with a home-assembled 4-inch telescope June 14, is named for him and Norman G. Thomas, a professional astronomer at Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz., who confirmed Mark's observations.

Thomas spotted a mysterious light, which turned out to be the comet, June 17 on a photographic plate made to trace the asteroid Icarus.

Easley Blackwood's new job as executive head of the American Contract Bridge League leaves him little time for anything else, but he did find time to kibitz awhile at a rubber game in Greenwich on a recent Saturday.

Today's hand was dealt shortly after Easley left and South was not at all happy when West opened his ace of clubs and continued to give his partner the setting trick with the king.

South was very unhappy with the result and highly critical of his partner. South said, "If Blackwood were still watching, I bet you would have used his bid and kept us out of this bad slam. Why didn't you bid four no-trump?"

North felt that his five-heart bid was correct and has appealed to us to answer the question.

Our answer, which is the same as Easley's would be, is that there are hands that call for the use of his convention and hands that call for shunning it, and North's hand is one that calls for shunning it.

The main purpose of Blackwood is to keep out of impossible slams. Usually, a Blackwood bidder will have decided that he is going to a slam and just uses the convention to make sure that his opponents can't take two aces against him.

Thus, you never use Blackwood when you hold a worthless doubleton in an unbid suit. North had two worthless doubletons and if he had asked for aces, North would have found that one was missing. North would not know whether or not his partner could take the second lead of the aceless suit.

Finally, North's five-heart bid should have given South a perfect picture of his hand. North had said, "I am scared of both minor suits. If you can protect both, go to a slam; otherwise stop at five."

Youth Fails in Move to Evade Draft

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Larry Alan Garner, 20, of Fort Smith tried unsuccessfully Tuesday to get U.S. District Court to invalidate a Selective Service order directing him to work for two years at the University of Arkansas Medical Center here in lieu of military service.

Garner, a member of Jehovah's Witnesses, sought a restraining order against a local draft board at Heber Springs. He said he had not been advised of his right to appeal to a Selective Service Appeal Board.

He contended he should be deferred either as a minister or because he had been given the responsibility for an additional dependent.

The Heber Springs board ordered Garner to report to the Medical Center at 8 a.m. today. Garner's attorney, Allan Dishongh of Little Rock, said he would advise Garner to report but to perform no work. Dishongh said he would file a petition today seeking to get Garner released from the Medical Center obligation.

However, Garner reported to the center this morning, filled out an application and left.

A spokesman at the center said there wouldn't be any action taken on the application today, but said Garner would be placed in a position he is most suited for.

Arkansas was the first state to ratify the child labor amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Delivering the GOODS!

INCOMING OR OUTGOING, we're equipped to take care of your shipments, from a carton to a trainload. And our service is linked not only with other railroads, but with truck and steamship lines as well.

Container freight is a growing aspect of our business. It involves the use of large protective units in which freight of all kinds, including perishables, is packed and sealed at your plant, for removal only by the receiver.

This method nullifies pilferage, reduces the possibility of damage and saves shipping costs, especially on export and import shipments.

Yes, we're in business to deliver your goods, and we'll appreciate the opportunity of working with you. A call to our local office will start your freight to rolling.

You Are the Man at the End of the Tax Line

A farmer friend the other day gave me the following argument on taxes:

He said agriculture has a special tax handicap because a city business can add its taxes onto the prices it charges its customers for goods—but the farmer has a great deal of trouble raising prices regardless of justice.

He has a point, of course. But in the last analysis all of us are individual consumers and we pay all the taxes levied against our suppliers in the prices charged us for commodities and services. Just as water seeks its own level, if enough taxes hit enough farmers for a sufficient length of time the prices of farm commodities will eventually rise—either they will rise or the non-farm population will go hungry.

The vital point to be recognized—whether by farmer or non-farmer—is that all taxation, whether direct or indirect, sooner or later increases the cost of living. This is demonstrated by a news item in this morning's papers.

The Government is getting ready to levy a 10 per cent increase in the federal income tax—the "surcharge" you have been reading about—claiming that it is necessary to halt rising prices and further inflation. This is a politician's argument. Factual economic observers ask how can you raise taxes without further increasing prices. You can't—and a news item this morning says that very thing.

This morning's Wall Street Journal reports that major utility companies plan to make rate increases to offset the federal tax boost, which they say will cost them 400 millions a year.

So you'll pay more for household electricity, gas, water, and telephones—just as a starter. But then all the manufacturers, and all the suppliers will have a similar expense, to be passed on to you in higher prices on basic items such as steel—and the whole load will wind up in the individual's lap, regardless whether he lives in the city or the country.

Where you live is of less importance than understanding this one great economic truth: Government has no money of its own—every federal spending program eventually has to be paid for by you . . . either in direct taxes or those levied against you indirectly, higher prices carrying the taxes levied against those from whom you buy.

I've been writing this ever since profligate spending was inaugurated in the third administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

For the same basic truth I opposed Hope's $400,000 post office and federal building just a few years ago.

I had plenty of opposition. Not so much now.

A tax increase isn't an argument—it's a fact for all to see.

Commission to Cut Back on Expenses

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The director of the state Forestry Commission said today the commission would consider an across-the-board reduction in all expenses, including salaries.

Virgil Cothren said the commissioners, who were to meet today, would consider the possibilities of cutting the agency's staff and reducing some full-time employees to part-time.

Cothren said, however, the economizing couldn't be called large scale.

He said the measures were being considered to offset an almost $70,000 reduction in timber severance tax revenues during the past year. The tax, which is paid by those who harvest timber, is a major source of commission funds.

Telephone Firm Changes Hands

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Allied Telephone Co. announced Tuesday that it had bought the stock of the Rural Telephone Co., which operates an exchange at Elaine, which serves Elaine, Lake View, Wabash, Lambrook, Snow Lake and several other communities in Phillips County.

Fulbright Wants Loyalty at Convention

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., who seldom takes a hand in state politics, announced Tuesday that he has moved to insure that a loyal delegation represents Arkansas at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago in August.

Fulbright said he had rounded up enough proxy votes from Democratic State Committee members to deny Jim Johnson, one of his opponents, any hope of stacking the delegation with supporters of George Wallace, a third-party candidate for president.

The senator said he plans to attend the meeting June 27 at which the committee will name delegates with a proxy that will entitle him to vote and to take the floor if necessary.

Fulbright said he could not remember ever having attended a committee meeting but that he felt impelled to act this year to preserve integrity of the Democratic Party.

Johnson circulated petitions to qualify Wallace for the Arkansas ballot, then filed as a Democratic candidate for Fulbright's seat.

Jim McDougal, a Fulbright aide, said the senator had at least 36 and possibly 50 proxies. He said proxies are still coming in and all committee members have not yet been contacted.

Fulbright said he would not seek to dictate to delegates the choice of a presidential candidate but that he wants the delegation to go to Chicago uncommitted.

Arkansas has been allotted 52 delegates and 31 alternates. Fulbright said he hoped all philosophies in the party would be represented in the delegation.

McDougal said Fulbright decided to act after Johnson was successful in March in blocking an effort within the committee to require Democratic candidates for state office to support the national Democratic ticket.

McDougal said a check of the roll card showed that many of Fulbright's friends did not show up for the committee meeting, leaving the field clear for Johnson.

An uncommitted delegation would put Arkansas in a better bargaining position at the convention. In addition, it would keep national politics out of the state primary July 30.

Fulbright said that traditionally Arkansas' Democratic governors have handled convention arrangements but that Johnson's defeat by Republican Winthrop Rockefeller in the 1966 gubernatorial race "left the committee in the hands of a defeated nominee, an unprecedented situation."

Going on a Diet Is Hard Enough Without Those Silly Remarks

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that make people on a diet feel like starting a riot: "Why go through all that agony of taking it off if you're only going to put it right back on again?"

"What do you mean you've lost 10 pounds already? Where?"

"Pardon me, but isn't one of your chins missing?"

"You're not jogging—you're jiggling."

"The only exercise that will do you any good is to put both hands on the table and push yourself away from it."

"Yep, I can see a big improvement already. You used to look like you had a watermelon under your vest. Now it just looks like you're smuggling a bowling ball."

"Have you tried eating only while under hypnosis? You wake up feeling simply stuffed."

"It took you 40 years to get in that shape, but I think that if you keep working at it you should be able to get back into condition in half that time."

"George, why can't you be philosophic about it? After all, some people are naturally skinny and others were born to look like laundry bags."

Public Pressure Sends Gun Control Bill to Judiciary Committee

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — With opposition melting under public pressure, a bill to ban the mail order sale of rifles and shotguns has been sent to the Senate Judiciary Committee, for years a graveyard of such legislation.

The committee, meeting today on the bill, rejected it originally 10-6 just a few hours before the April 4 sniper-slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

But, against a backdrop of the Sen. Robert F. Kennedy assassination and a mounting public din, a clear majority now favors the bill and its chances are rated excellent—not only to reach the floor, but perhaps for quick passage, too.

The Judiciary subcommittee on juvenile delinquency gave quick approval to the measure Tuesday.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, ranking minority member of the parent committee, said he foresaw no objection to reporting the measure favorably to the Senate.

Under committee rules, however, a single member could request that action be put off for a week.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., a foe of the bill, told a reporter he hadn't decided whether to invoke the rule but wanted to be sure the measure receives thorough consideration.

The subcommittee's vote revealed switches in position by Sens. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., and Birch Bayh, D-Ind.

Dirksen also shifted on the bill submitted to Congress by President Johnson after the Kennedy shooting June 5.

"If there is a demand for it, why should I resist it, Dirksen asked when questioned at a news conference about his change of position.

Most surprising was Hruska's statement that he would support the administration bill, although he said he hoped to win approval.

Self Defense Ruled in Fatal Shooting

A Coroner's Inquest has exonerated Jimmie Lee Criner Linsey, Negro, for the fatal shooting Sunday of another Negro, John Henry Pugh. Testimony indicated the shooting was self defense.

Coroner J. T. Honeycutt's report said, "An inquisition was rendered by the coroner's jury and found the slaying of John Henry Pugh to be excusable homicide under the circumstances."

All 13 members of the jury concurred in its findings.

al of some amendments. During debate on the crime control bill recently passed by Congress, Hruska led the fight against an amendment by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to prohibit sales of shotguns and rifles by mail order and to persons under 18.

The amendment was defeated, 53-23, but since the assassination of Robert Kennedy members of Congress have been flooded with demands for stronger gun controls.

Ironically, Kennedy's assassin used a pistol and the crime bill provides for a ban on mail order sales of handguns and prohibits their over-the-counter sales to nonresidents of a state and to persons under 21 years of age.

Realtors Are Puzzled Over Property Law

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Little Rock realtors seem puzzled over a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that a 102-year-old law prohibits racial discrimination in the sale or rental of property.

Several said they were still figuring out how the open housing provisions of the recently enacted Civil Rights bill affects them when the decision was handed down.

A representative of one of the largest realty firms in Little Rock said he did not anticipate an effect from the ruling until it is coupled with legislation already passed.

"We are under instructions from various owners on who to rent or sell to," the spokesman said. "Until they change that, we wouldn't rent in a white neighborhood to a colored applicant."

He said the Negro applicants had eyed some 100 per cent white apartment projects but that they were rejected.

"If we put a colored applicant in an apartment project that is occupied solely by white people, I would estimate we would lose 30 or 40 per cent of the white tenants," he said. "It's a matter of economics."

Warm, Humid in Arkansas, Some Rain

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Warmer, more humid air began moving back into Arkansas today and the U.S. Weather Bureau predicts widely scattered showers for the afternoons and evenings in southern and western portions of the state.

The warming trend, which produced temperatures five to six degrees higher Wednesday morning than the previous morning, is expected to continue through Thursday.

A ridge of high pressure still controls the state's weather pattern, but it is being squeezed out by both a shower, low pressure area to the south and by a frontal system in a trough of low pressure to the north.

High temperatures Tuesday ranged from 83 at Harrison to 93 at Brinkley. Overnight lows ranged from 57 at Calico Rock to 72 at Pine Bluff and Texarkana.

The only rainfall reported in the 24-hour period ending at 7 a.m. today was some isolated showers in southern Arkansas Tuesday afternoon.

Aides Charge Convention Is Stacked

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy has scored a walkaway delegate victory in the New York primary and one of his chief backers there has scored an upset for the state's Democratic Senate nomination.

While McCarthy added the delegates to his presidential bid, his aides charged in Washington the Democratic National Convention leadership had been stacked in favor of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

A slow count gave McCarthy more than 50 of the 123 delegate seats at stake, allies of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy 20 and Humphrey 1. New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller automatically won 71 Republican delegates and was challenged by Richard M. Nixon candidates for the other 11.

McCarthy's backer Paul O'Dwyer, a former New York councilman, defeated Eugene H. Nickerson, a Kennedy man, and Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick for the nomination to oppose incumbent Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits.

Adam Clayton Powell of Harlem, denied his congressional seat last year, won nomination for re-election.

The convention leadership stacking charge came after the appointment Tuesday of House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma as permanent convention chairman, and Rep. Hale Boggs of Louisiana, former chairman.

A statement issued by McCarthy's headquarters called Boggs an "extreme hawk" on the Vietnam war and said both Boggs and Albert are strong supporters and confidants of President Johnson.

"We feel strongly," said McCarthy campaign chairman Blair Clark, "that they have stacked the convention leadership."

The appointments for the convention opening Aug. 26 in Chicago were announced by Democratic National Chairman John W. Bailey after a meeting with the party's executive committee.

Harriman Says U.S. Not Against Peaceful Vietnam Unification

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent
PARIS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman declared today that the United States wants to re-establish peace in Vietnam "on the basis of the 1954 Geneva accords" and does not object to the eventual unification of the country provided neither side uses force.

Going into his ninth session with Ambassador Xuan Thuy of North Vietnam, Harriman said he would concentrate today on the Geneva agreements which ended French rule of Vietnam and divided the country 14 years ago.

He linked this immediately with the current conference deadlock over scaling down the war by saying that the first stage of action under the Geneva agreements is to re-establish peace.

Harriman also told newsmen that it was "too early to judge" why the Viet Cong had not carried out its threat to bombard Saigon with barrages of 100 rockets a day beginning last Monday. U.S. and South Vietnamese officials in Saigon generally felt the threat was a bluff.

At the session today, Harriman said, "We're planning to explain the 1954 accords and their application today."

"We want to re-establish peace on the basis of . . . the accords," he continued. "You know several states were contemplated at that time. The first one is peace, and that requires the withdrawal of forces back of the 17th parallel and re-establishment of the demilitarized zone."

"Of course, in the long run we've never objected to the unification of Vietnam, which I think both North and South want to do at some time. But it must be done by the free expression of both sides without the use of force on either side."

A broadcast Tuesday from Hanoi showed no relaxation of the Communist demand for an unconditional halt to American attacks on North Vietnam. It said the U.S. demand for reciprocal "restraints" was "absurd" and "the Vietnamese people definitely will pay no ransom of any sort for U.S. aggression."

The ninth session of the talks which opened five and a half weeks ago came as North Vietnamese helicopters were reported in operation along their border with South Vietnam.

McCarthy Jolts N.Y. Democrats

By CHARLES DUMAS
Associated Press Writer
ALBANY (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy jolted state Democratic forces today by overpowering Humphrey and Kennedy delegate slates while a McCarthy supporter scored an upset victory in a three-way Senate race.

The Minnesota senator jubilantly hailed the results of the state's primary as one of his greatest victories.

Partial returns slowed by hand-counting of paper ballots gave McCarthy 51 of the 123 convention delegate slots at stake. Delegates who said they were remaining pledged to the ideals of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy won 20 while backers of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey had one.

The voting trend indicated that McCarthy would maintain the wide lead in delegates.

The surprise Senate victor was Paul O'Dwyer, a former city councilman and brother of former mayor of New York City. He defeated Eugene H. Nickerson, Nassau County executive who came into the race at the urging of Kennedy and Rep. Joseph Y. Resnick, of upstate Ellenville, a Johnson-Humphrey administration supporter.

In a phone call to O'Dwyer headquarters here, McCarthy said, "It's going to be very difficult for party leaders in New York to read the results and not tremble."

An O'Dwyer spokesman said later that McCarthy would make an unscheduled campaign visit to New York City late today, presumably to capitalize on the psychological lift the victory was expected to give his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

There was no immediate comment from the Humphrey camp. He had not mounted a major personal effort in the state.

McCarthy delegates were entered in 37 of the state's 41 congressional districts. Slates pledged to Humphrey ran in 25 and delegates pledged to Kennedy in 30.

While the Minnesota senator's feat impressed political observers, O'Dwyer's triumph was even more startling. He was expected to finish last in a three-way race but, running as a McCarthy adherent, managed to edge out the favored Nickerson.

Nickerson conceded defeat at 3:12 a.m., as O'Dwyer led by 18,500 votes. Resnick was running third.

With 12,306 of the state's 13,408 districts counted, O'Dwyer had 284,479 votes, Nickerson 248,092 and Resnick 214,270.

On the Republican side, supporters of Richard M. Nixon put up challengers for only 11 of the 82 delegate slots. The remaining 71 went automatically to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Of the 11, two in Queens went to Nixon, two in the Rochester area went to Rockefeller and seven were undecided.

The congressional phase of the primary saw all challenged incumbents win renomination—among them Brooklyn Democrat Emanuel Celler, the 80-year-old dean of the House.

The controversial Adam Clayton Powell, who was ousted from the House last year, also won the Democratic nomination easily in his Harlem district.

Election returns were delayed because of the unusually large number of contests for a wide variety of offices, including seats in both houses of the state legislature, as well as Congress and the presidential delegates.

Dog Track Bill to Be Law at Noon

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Marion Burton, an aide to Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, said Tuesday that a controversial dog track bill will become law at noon today unless Rockefeller files back from the Southern Governors' Conference to veto it.

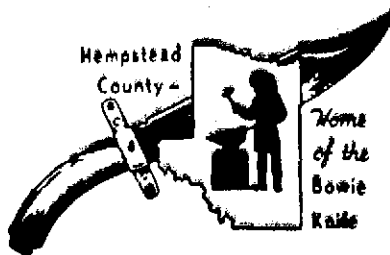

Burton said that Rockefeller, when he left for the conference, had not made up his mind on the measure which will make it easier to vote out the state's only dog track at West Memphis.

Very often, the same insect control (Spectracide, by Geigy Chemical Corporation, is one example) can be used on lawns, flowers, vegetables, trees and shrubs.

Once pieces are cleaned and dry, they're ready for reconditioning. If paint has chipped in spots and the color is the conventional white or green, touch-ups are easy. If chipping is extensive, however, better repaint the whole surface. Smooth off first with a fine grade of sandpaper. Often a coat of clear varnish over the fresh coat of paint assures added protection against the elements.

If your tan reaches a stage

Find Fun in Far-away Places or Close to Home

IT'S NO PICNIC to clean up after an outing but it's easier for you next time if you tackle the job as soon as the fun is over. A nylon scouring pad works best on a barbecue grill.

GET BARBECUE GEAR IN SHAPE THE EASY WAY

The aromas of charcoal broiled chicken and beef are beginning to waft across backyards and camping grounds of America as the barbecue season shifts into high gear.

Now's the time to get in early on pleasant weather, lengthening days and wholesome food, by pulling out the barbecue grill or hibachi stove and readying it for the season ahead. Here are a few hints to improve your barbecue:

First, be sure your equipment is in good working order. This means cleaning dirt and grease left over from last summer, and removing winter's accumulated rust. A mild abrasive scouring pad such as a nylon Scotch-brite pad will do the job best, since it removes dirt and rust without gouging metal, and won't splinter and flake like steel wool.

When your equipment is clean, give the outer parts a going-over with a rust-inhibiting paint. This will smarten its looks and make it more pre-

Use Color for Low-Cost Yet Impressive Effects in Patio

If fix-up funds for the patio are limited, there are inexpensive ways to create decorative excitement for your outdoor living room. The formula is simply to try some new ways with color, in small and large amounts, and still use existing furnishings.

Start by building your color sentable for company and outdoor events.

You can improve your cooking (and make clean-up easier) if you line the inside of the pan with heavy-duty aluminum foil, then put a few pebbles over the foil to help get air down through the charcoal. This will make for more even distribution of heat.

Now you're ready to prepare your sizzling success — and if you've followed these tips the flavor will come through clean and good. You can make it easier for yourself next time, too, if you clean up afterwards with the same nylon scouring pad you used earlier. Nobody, after all, wants to taste last week's chicken on tonight's sirloin steak.

plan from the floor up, to visually make the patio a colorful part of Nature's setting. Once you have a good color foundation, then concentrate on budget ways to add new fabric accents and new antiqued or enameled accents to a weather-beaten table or an outmoded chair.

According to Anne Cain, color consultant for Rez color tones, for under ten dollars you can apply a concrete color stain to add a durable and sophisticated carpet of color to the patio floor. The stain is easy to apply and provides a colorful protection for the walking surface while maintaining the textural appeal of concrete.

Earthy tones, floral shades, spruce colors, a complete range of shades allows decorative dexterity to effect a variety of spirited patio moods that avoid drabness. Apply the stains with a roller, large paint brush, a spray gun or even a soft push-broom. Depending on the intensity of the color desired, one coat of stain may do the job. But even if two coats are applied, it's still a low-cost and

Pack a Little Work-Saving Magic in Bag

Every vacationer should have a catchall compartment for special items to help make your vacation easier and carefree. Among such items packed by experienced travelers are:

Eyeglasses — if you wear them, carry an extra pair plus a prescription in the event they break.

Health Needs — if you take medication, have an adequate supply plus a prescription.

First Aid Items — always a good idea. You may not be near a drug store.

Grooming Aids — compact folding iron, basic sewing kit, spot remover. Also, be sure to take along a convenient can of spray sizing, a remarkable compound that speeds and eases ironing, and restores like-new body and feel to all your clothing. All come in handy when clothing demands quick attention.

Packing Aids — plastic bags for soiled shoes and wet bathing suits, and an extra pair of luggage keys.

Before selecting your vacation wardrobe, ask yourself these questions: What will the climate be? What types of clothing are suitable for daytime? Does the evening call for "dressy" clothing? No sense taking cocktail clothes if the attire is strictly casual.

Travel-wise fabrics are everywhere today. No-wrinkle synthetics, wash-and-wear blends, stretch fabrics that don't sag, knits that pack without protest, no-iron jerseys, are all excellent. These synthetics and wash-and-wear blends are a dream to pack and easy to launder. Just rinse and hang them straight on wooden hangers to dry. Most will improve with a little touch-up ironing, and here is where your travel iron and spray sizing are worth the effort of taking them along.

Magic spray sizing is just the thing to perk up travel-weary dresses and sports clothes. Whether your clothes need a touch-up on arrival or after laundering, you can safely use spray sizing on all synthetic and wash-and-wear fabrics.

Your Camera Remembers...

Today, the family setting off on vacation without a camera is unusual — or forgetful. Instant-load cameras, flash cubes, and automatic — almost — everything make photography so easy that anyone can produce happy memories on film.

To make your vacation memorable and re-memorable, camera experts offer a few tips:

1. It is fun to view the results of several photographers. The vacation comes alive again — as seen by different members of the family. Therefore, it's a good idea to have more than one camera on hand, if possible. A carefree one for Junior... a basic model for Mother... easy to use and to focus... and a modern wonder for Dad, with automatic electric eye and a view-finder which incorporates shutter speed, focus and a "ready" light.

2. Concentrate on slides. It's more fun to see them through a viewer (or, even better, a projector) than to look at an album. And color slides are less expensive than color prints.

3. If you have a projector, as any camera-happy family should, get the kind that can show (and store) lots of slides. Roundabouts hold up to one hundred. This makes it possible for you to set up an uninterrupted story sequence.

4. When you do transfer slides from projector or viewer, clip a tiny triangle from one corner of the frame. Line up the notches, and the slides come out right side up.

5. Above all, remember that only your camera can put you right back in the picture. Post-holiday, a screening takes you back to sunshine, seashore, mountains, whatever. You're there once again, and a photograph helps you relive that happy time as nothing else can.

easy project.

Now bring out the furnishings and see how color can revamp their appeal. For the picnic table and bench that have been collecting dust and are marred from summer wear, first scrub them down thoroughly, sand rough areas, and apply a redwood stain that will revive the color, renew the charm and protect the surface from the elements.

FOR SENSIBLE SUNNING and vacationing this couple is well equipped with sunglasses. Fashion-styled, they combine today's look with the eye-ease of top quality lenses and perfect fit.

Travel Light But Don't Forget Eye-Protection

Remember the days when taking a trip required weeks, sometimes months, of planning to get all your clothes and equipment in readiness? What a chore it was to prepare for what was to be that well-deserved escape from a year's grind!

Not so today... since the arrival of the jet age, much of this has changed, and travel has more and more become a fun thing that one can look forward to. One piece of lightweight luggage now easily harbors all the necessities of the modern traveler — the feather-light drip-dry wardrobe, the collapsible umbrella, even an inflatable rubber float.

There is, however, one item that's too often forgotten and then most sorely missed, and that is a pair of truly good sunglasses, which the traveler may not be able to purchase in the desired quality or style at his destination.

"Sunglasses should be part of the standard equipment of every vacationer, because proper eye protection against the harmful invisible rays of the sun is even more important than the protection of the skin, and permanent damage can be done to the eyes without it. If you intend to drive a car any time along the way, glare protection is particularly essential," says Bausch & Lomb, maker of famous Ray-Ban sunglasses.

According to this expert — and this seems to be a little known fact — a person's ability to see at night will be reduced 50% (and up to 90%), after a few hours in the sun without wearing good sunglasses. What this could mean to a driver is fairly obvious. In fact, if eyes were left unprotected from the sun for say a week, it could cut down an individual's night vision for weeks thereafter, directly in proportion to the amount of sun exposure received.

"Vacationers in the mountains," adds the sunglass manufacturer, "should be particularly careful, because the thinner air does not filter out as much of the harmful ultraviolet rays. Only a few minutes exposure here can produce an extremely painful eye-burn in some people, proportionate to their ability to tan."

"A good pair of sunglasses, that will give you maximum eye protection," states a scientist, "should have the following quality requirements: Lenses should be made of glass in colors sage green or grey — plastic lenses cannot protect from the invisible infrared and ultraviolet rays — and they should be made to professional optical standards."

Wise Parents Prepare Small Vacationers For The Big Trip

For the pre-school youngster, the family's summer vacation trip might bring his first view of a giant redwood or the Lincoln Memorial, his first train or plane ride or his first camping expedition. However the family decides to spend that two or three week vacation, the new sights and experiences can be frightening and confusing — or exciting and meaningful to the pre-school child.

The pre-schooler who has some idea of what he will see and what he will encounter on vacation will enjoy the trip far more than the one who is uprooted from his familiar surroundings with no more warning than "We're going on vacation". And it is the wise parent who knows that preparing the pre-school child for a trip will make the vacation more fun and relaxing for the whole family.

Playschool Research recommends preparing the child for the trip in advance and suggests these steps for explaining the "how" and "what" of the vacation trip to the youngster:

Show him, on a map, his home city and the vacation area. Tell him about differences in climate or customs. If there are older children in the family too, learning about the vacation area in advance can become a family project.

Show him pictures of some of the things he will see — a lake and a boat, the Statue of Liberty, a swimming pool, mountains or a cable car. If the trip includes a visit to seldom-seen relatives in a far-away city, pictures of Uncle George or Cousin Susan will help him overcome shyness at meeting new people.

Tell him how he will be traveling — family car, plane, train, boat — and explain any restrictions that will be necessary for everyone in the family such as seat belts on airplanes and "sitting still" on trains and cars.

Relate some of his toys to the trip. With a puzzle plaque map of the U.S., for example, he can learn while playing to locate his own state and those he will visit. With wooden trains, planes, or a toy cart like the airlines use to transport baggage from plane to terminal, he can "imagine" himself into the situation. With his blocks, he can "build" the motel or cottage where he will stay.

Let him help with the packing. If possible, let him have his own small suitcase for his clothes. Explain to him why certain clothes are necessary — "You'll need your sweater because it's cool at the lake", or "You can wear this when we eat dinner in the restaurant".

Let him take along one or two of his favorite toys. They will mean "home" to him in an unfamiliar situation and will give him something to play with enroute.

Buy one or two new toys for him in advance of the trip. Even on vacations, there are hours when "there's nothing to do" and a new playtool will be more meaningful for him than a souvenir of the vacation spot.

When a pre-schooler understands that he, too, is helping to plan the trip, the vacation will become more memorable for the family, for everyone is sure to capture some of the special "first" wonder and excitement that only a pre-schooler can share.

Beware the Treacherous Breezes . . .

At the beach, aboard a boat or on waterskiis, summer breezes are cool, comfortable and wonderful for your disposition.

Unfortunately, they are less than kind to your skin.

For years, skin specialists and beauty experts have cautioned women against deep, drying sunbaths. Yet they say scarcely a word about the summer winds that plague today's active women.

Windburn, a recognized skin care problem in winter, is just as troublesome through the summer months. Those refreshing winds that blow off the ocean or lake can make your skin raw, rough and weatherbeaten.

Water, you see, is your skin's best friend. The skin's surface is kept soft by water from within, which is released slowly through an underlayer of the skin. Your skin's own oils act as agents for controlling the release of this necessary moisture. When the natural oils are removed by too much wind, your skin loses its youthful, moist look.

Breezes also pose another, subtler, kind of threat. Your skin cannot build up a tolerance to wind as it can to sunlight. If it is not continually protected from windburn, it can suffer the same damage in mid-August as in mid-May.

CULOTTES give active little girls the fashion look with comfort. In cool linen, the pantdress stays neat and fresh looking. Here, in lively navy with crisp white collar, low-slung belt and tiny buttons. White openwork knee socks are the perfect balance for the short-skirted culottes.

Each morning, before you go out, coat your skin lightly but thoroughly with a film of petroleum jelly. ("Vaseline" is fine). This emollient, inexpensive and versatile, forms a fine translucent shield against drying winds. After smoothing it on, you can tissue off the excess. The tiny amount of petroleum jelly that remains will give your skin excellent windburn protection.

If you're spending the entire day out of doors, you'll want to reapply the petroleum jelly at intervals. Since it comes in handy tubes as well as the familiar medicine chest jars, you can easily tuck it in your beachbag.

Incidentally, husbands and children appreciate the windburn protection of petroleum jelly, too. Their hands, cheeks and chins need a light, comfortable coat of the emollient.

You may have been one of the careful gardeners who did a thorough job of "laying up" your equipment. Then you're all ready to go.

flected glare through a unique molecular construction that enables only vertically vibrating light — useful light — to pass through to the anglers' eyes. By halting horizontally vibrating light they wipe out that fierce sheen of sun-on-water.

According to the manufacturer, "Sportsmaster" doesn't stop there. Not content with eliminating reflected glare, the makers decided to deal with direct, overhead glare, too. So they added an exclusive visor to their sunglass, a shield against the noon-day sun that used to bother everyone but mad dogs and Englishmen.

BOATING SAFETY

Recreational boating is one of the safest outdoor sports. There are few accidents and even fewer serious injuries and fatalities. But since there is still an element of risk, no matter how small, boat owners are reminded to conduct a safety countdown before each cruise.

A safety check list suggested by an oil products company in a booklet covers these eight important points:

- Check the weather conditions expected.
- Tell someone on shore where you are going and when you expect to arrive.
- Check your compass and lay out a course.
- Test lights, horn, all engines and clutches.
- Are there enough life preservers and are they in good condition?
- See to it that the anchor is ready to go and that it is well secured to the boat.
- Look over your first aid kit. Is it completely stocked?
- Have you all the fuel and oil you will need?

When you are ok on all these points, and only then, you are ready to go.

The booklet, Safety Afloat, is offered by Mobil Oil Corporation.

SUMMER BARGAINS

If your vacation budget's straining at all the extra things you need — children's playclothes, swimwear, equipment for outdoor living — check your local Goodwill Industries before despairing. Shops feature a vast selection of bargain-priced, almost-new apparel and miscellaneous items, all repaired and refinished by skilled handicapped workers who restore donated merchandise.

DOG 'MOTORING'? CODE OF THE ROAD

The "no pets allowed" rule has been relaxed at many motels. At least one motel chain advertises special accommodations for pet guests. Some managers consider pets a good credit reference. One manager was quoted in a motel trade journal as saying, "I don't recall having a guest here with a pet who left without paying his bill".

No one should expect a pet to pay the bill, but the Pet Food Institute advises that you should be extra conscientious about your pet's manners when he goes vacationing.

This dog owner's "code of the road" will help you assure a welcome for your pet:

- When you stop at a motel or hotel, don't try to smuggle your dog into your room. Be honest. Tell the manager you will be responsible for your pet's behavior.
- Take along your dog's bed or a rug for him to sleep on. Do not allow him to lounge on the beds or chairs in the room.
- To avoid accidents caused by an upset stomach, take a supply of your dog's favorite dog foods. Avoid giving him doggy-bag scraps and rich snacks.
- Put several layers of newspapers under his food and water bowls.
- Exercise him off the premises, never near lawns or shrubbery. Swimming pool and playground areas are off limits, too.
- Always walk your dog on a leash. Don't let him run loose.
- The best behaved dog may misbehave in a strange place. Put your dog in your car when you go out to dinner or on a sight-seeing tour.
- Carry a certificate from a veterinarian stating that your dog is in good health and has been inoculated for rabies. You will be complying with state and local regulations in many areas.

By observing these courtesies, your own trip will be more pleasant.

Many experts predict that the Midi length will not come in strong until Fall. Then, it will be worn with ruffled blouses or shirts and high boots.

SIZZLING NEW FASHION FOR A STEAK-OUT. Barbecues and outdoor living are all-important during the summer season and this easy-going printed halter dress is perfect for lounging, gardening, or barbecuing a steak on the open pit.

Refresh and Guard Your Complexion

Summer sun, salt water, sand and outdoor activities take a heavy toll on the complexion. Also, such exposure has a way of creeping up.

The tendency on a vacation is to forget the routine and adopt a carefree attitude. Generally speaking, this is a sound approach but where the complexion is concerned, damage may occur that will take months of special attention to remedy.

The best way to remember your complexion and thus, guard against over exposure to the elements, is to pack your home facial beauty appliance along with the fish tackle and swim suits.

The Saunda Facial Sauna, for instance, is a lightweight, portable beauty appliance which will be ready at a moment's notice.

tice to quickly care for your complexion. It can be used on any location where an electrical outlet is available and requires only 1½ ounces of tap water to become operative.

You can take a facial with this "beauty machine" in the relaxing atmosphere of vacation cabin or yacht, wherever you may be. As the warm mist deep — cleanses your pores through the flow of perspiration, your facial tissues receive the benefit of renewed circulation and — under skin — nourishment to produce a vital, glowing complexion.

The next step in a vacation facial is to thoroughly remove the impurities driven outward by the flow of perspiration by generously applying the facial scrub which contains beauty grains.

Next, you will want to apply a few drops of freshener. This will give your skin an exhilarated feeling and close the pores which have been opened by the warm, moist mist treatment.

Now use plenty of moisturizer because the sun and wind tend to deplete the facial tissues.

SEA SIRENS in swimsuits styled for sunny beaches. A bikini in a soft, supple knit fabric of texture-set nylon; in a multi-color Teakwood print, it is quick drying, has a soft, silken feeling. For swimming and after, suit with tank top, boy shorts and a matching skirt.

DOs & DON'Ts FOR SUN-TANNING

- 1. Check your Skin Type
Is your skin normal, sun-sensitive or sun-resistant? If normal, you'll sunburn readily, tan rapidly. Sensitive skin sunburns easily, tans slowly. If your skin is sun-resistant, you will sunburn slowly but tan quickly.
- 2. Check your Locale
Where are you? The sun's rays are stronger near water than in grassy areas; far more intense at high altitudes; much stronger in the South than in the North.
- 3. Check the Time of Day
Are you an early bird? Before 9 A.M. there's practically no tanning action. The sun's intensity builds up rapidly between 9 and 11 A.M. Watch yourself from 11 to 1 P.M., the time of the sun's greatest intensity. Between 1 and 3 P.M. there'll be intensive sunray action; after 3, practically no tanning action.
- 4. Check the Weather
Is it a clear day? You'll get the best tan. Be careful on a hazy day; moisture reflects the sun's rays so avoid over exposure. Foggy or cloudy weather means little chance of getting a tan.
- 5. Check the Right Sunscreen Product for You
If you prefer a clear, non-oily liquid the cleanest, neatest way to apply a sun screen — then Bronztan. Clear Lotion is recommended for you. One of the most effective sunscreens yet known, it dries rapidly so sand won't stick and protects even after swimming.

If your skin is dry or sensitive, you'll probably prefer a Cream Lotion which offers high protection and softens and moisturizes tender skin.

If you're a true beachnik, a quick tanner, someone who lives at the beach, then you should try Bronztan Moisturizing Lotion. Use it the whole sun season through to smooth, moisturize and soften sun-wind-weather-exposed skin. And it helps to prevent drying, peeling, flaking.

DON'Ts

- 1. Don't Over-do the First Day
Don't stay in the sun too long the first day. The secret of a beautiful bronze tan is to take the sun slowly and sensibly.
- 2. Don't be fooled by a Hazy Day
Don't be lulled into a sense of false security by a gray day. Your chances of burning are the greatest so keep your skin protected and avoid over exposure.
- 3. Don't Sun at All if Supersensitive
If your skin has little pigmentation to develop a tan or if you are allergic to the sun's rays, stay away from it!
- 4. Don't Just Lie There — Do Something!
Take advantage of your sun-tanning time with healthful beautifying exercises. Take along your transistor radio and you can keep in shape to music!

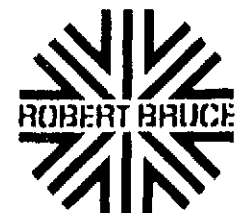

The so-called "alpha test" was an intelligence test originally used in the U.S. Army in World War I.

Smart Vacation! a Change of Scene at Home

TODAY'S HOME LANDSCAPE is not only designed to enhance the beauty of the house, but also to provide the family with a relaxing setting. Such an area can be included in the master landscape plan prepared by a professional nurseryman.

LANDSCAPE DREAMS COME TRUE

A built-in barbecue fireplace; an over-sized, secluded patio for entertaining; a place for badminton; a rock garden; and two trees at just the right distance for the hammock and some old fashioned relaxing — who hasn't had dreams such as these when moving into a new home?

These ideals and dreams can become realities, especially when the planning is placed in the hands of a professional.

Sometimes, though, homeowners shy away from the "professional." "Our place is not an estate; surely it will be too small to be considered by a landscape designer." These are some of the reasons they give.

But this is not true. Almost every day, nurserymen are advising homeowners and planting home grounds that are modest in size and in typical suburban areas. Nurserymen realize that the small home grounds will sometimes have problems even more difficult to solve than those found on estates. But they also know that there are solutions and they can put their experience and knowledge of design and plants to good use.

Nurserymen will always advise homeowners to prepare a master plan of the entire home grounds before any planting is started. This can be quite elaborate, or sometimes just a simple sketch to act as a guide for creating the setting desired. Very often just a half-hour visit with a nurseryman will result in the solution to all home landscape problems. Providing him with certain information, however, will make the task even more elementary.

One of the most important things to bring when seeing your nurseryman is an accurate measurement of the size of the property, house, garage, etc. The landscape experts at the American Association of Nurserymen suggest that the entire plot be sketched on a piece of graph paper. By using the squares to represent a unit of measure — such as a foot — the exact location and size of the house, drives, walks and boundary lines can be filled in.

The next step is to place on your graph paper the location of any existing trees or shrubs, even if you feel they should be removed from the final design — your nurseryman may have other ideas. If the names of the plants are unknown, bring along a twig, small branch or some leaves and he will be able to identify it.

Some snapshots of the house and lot — close up and from a distance — will also be helpful to the AAN nurseryman as a guide to designing the area and selecting plants. The photographs may not be too beautiful, but think of the fun it will be comparing these "before" pictures with those you take of the landscape fully planted.

Finally, the AAN nurseryman will ask many questions about you and what "dreams" you have for your home landscape. You will certainly have many recreation features in mind, and the landscape designer will also want to include your favorite plants.

With the proper information about your home and property, plus your garden desires, it is surprising how a professional can mold them together into a beautiful setting just made for relaxing in the hammock strung between those strategically placed trees — that is until someone puts a badminton racquet in your hands.

TRAVELING WITH BABY

A vacation trip with Baby can be a space race for Mother. But the space needed to pack all of Baby's clothes and equipment may be a lot less for any trip you take this summer. Modern developments in infant care have led to many disposable items that cut down considerably on suitcase space.

Rental baby furniture, throw-away diapers and ready to use baby formula in disposable bottles have all come to the aid of a traveling mother.

Any trip with a baby requires a certain amount of paraphernalia, but with a little planning you can keep it down to a minimum, and make the trip much easier for you. Before you go, here are some tips:

- If you plan to visit your folks or any relatives who might not have a high chair or a crib, ask them to call a rental agency and reserve the equipment long before you plan to arrive. If the town you plan to visit doesn't have a rental agency, perhaps a neighbor would be willing to lend the equipment. A collapsible crib designed for traveling takes up almost an entire car trunk.

- Forget about doing diapers for the duration of your visit. Invest in a small supply of the disposable variety — just enough to get you where you're going. You'll be able to buy these and any of baby's other supplies wherever you go.

- Make baby feeding safer and easier by using Enfamil Nursette, the prepared, pre-sterilized formula in a pre-filled disposable glass nursing bottle. All you have to do is add a standard nipple and nipple collar. Because the unit does not have to be refrigerated, heating isn't necessary. And you won't have any worries about the safety of the formula or baby's nutrition en route.

- Pack a minimum of baby's clothing, preferably items that don't need ironing. You'll be able to launder what you do bring when you arrive, or in self-service laundry equipment along the way.

- Be sure to take the name and telephone number of Baby's doctor, and any medicines or vitamins he may be taking. You may want to pack a baby thermometer, too.

You'll find that your baby will be quite content almost any place you take him — for as long as you are there.

JUST A MINUTE. In just 60 seconds this curvaceous lady will have a color photo of herself. Or if the photographer is in a hurry, and is using black and white film, he'll be able to get her with a photo in 15 seconds. In any case, the instant photo camera is fun to use outdoors all summer, at home, or on vacation, and you know whether you have the picture you want, on the spot.

PROTECT, SOOTHE SUNBURN AREAS AND PESKY INSECT BITES

You can forget about your worries when you take off on vacation, but don't forget your skin. It's apt to be subjected to all sorts of occupational outdoor hazards . . . salted and dried by the ocean, fried to a crisp by the sun, bitten by insects and irritated by poison ivy and oak. Here are a few common sense precautions to take so that your skin can't lay you low or slow you down for even so much as a day.

Rinse yourself off well in the shower after swimming in salt water. Use a protective lotion while sunning.

If you're going picnicking, sunbathing or just sitting around outdoors, keep a small bottle of insect repellent tucked in your pocket or purse. When a low hum signals the approach of attackers, apply the repellent to all parts of you that are bare and biteable.

As for poison ivy and oak, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that nearly two million cases a year are serious enough to require either medical attention, or at least one day of restricted activity or both. Your best course when outdoors is to give a wide berth to any plant with leaves growing in clusters of three, whether or not the plant is flush on the ground or climbing trees, fences, or light poles.

In addition to taking precautions, it's a good idea to have on hand the wherewithal for some first aid treatment. Ideal for this, since it has other vacation uses aside from settling your skin problems, is baking soda. Be sure to stow a box in your luggage.

If your tan reaches a stage where it begins to flake and itch or if you've come down with a bad fresh burn, add a cupful of baking soda to the tubful of tepid water. Submerge and soak until itch or burn subsides. Soda's mild alkaline properties cleanse as well as soothe, so refrain from using the washcloth. Rubbing will irritate your skin. Remember too, to just pat yourself dry when you emerge.

Summer's Hosiery Look Is Soft

This summer the pretty girl look has completely supplanted tough chic as the center of fashion interest. Hemlines wander from micro - mini heights to midi with major emphasis a bit above the knee. New styles in stockings are in tune with the soft, all-feminine mood of fashion.

Dainty designs in lacy textured panty hose are prime favorites, reports Betty Curry, fashion director of Burlington Hosiery. Whatever the skirt length, imaginative leg fashions are the keynote for costume planning.

Scallops, a dainty new pattern in panty hose caters to the new romantic mood, said Miss Curry. Five slim scallop stripes make this "pretty girl" design outrageously flattering from any leg angle, back or front. Scallop co-stars on the daytime or evening scene with equally potent charm . . . comes in elegant pastels like cream, pink or blue, or in dark tones: black, brown or navy. Then choose costume and shoes to comple-

THE PRETTIEST KNITTIEST shirtwaist in navy blue with touches of white is an ideal choice for a vacation wardrobe. It's fashioned of a brand new polyester yarn called Encon. Easy to care for, the knits stay neat and fresh looking all day.

CAMPER-COOK'S BAG OF TRICKS

Space and time are at a premium and her cooking utensils must play dual roles. Necessities such as plastic wrap, paper towels and aluminum foil — tucked away in a basket, ready for each and every meal — have become mainstays of the camping kitchen.

Paper towels play a multiple role in cooking for campers because towel tricks save time and effort. The head of the household will use a sheet of paper towels over the coals. When he squirts, then lights the charcoal starter over the paper towels, he'll find that the towels help distribute the starter evenly, making an even fire.

The lady camper uses the paper towels all around the camp. But beware the flimsy or rough kind. It pays to buy quality. Kleenex paper towels are strong enough for wiping out grease-coated skillets, pretty enough to be used as placemats at dinner time. Later, she'll use them to wrap glasses for the move to the next campsite.

Versatile paper towels wrap around salad greens, keeping them fresh and crisp, wipe chicken, readying it for frying, or line a basket of hot buttery rolls.

Paper towels become "serving dishes" for fruit and cheese at dessert time. When dampened, the towels clean off a no-spill picnic table. They'll dry an apple, then later dry the tableware and pots and pans.

"What would we do without papertowels?" has been the cry of the campers. It's no wonder.

A Mix of Many Things Plotted for Pleasure

Wise Parents Prepare Small Vacationers For The Big Trip

For the pre-school youngster, the family's summer vacation trip might bring his first view of a giant redwood or the Lincoln Memorial, his first train or plane ride or his first camping expedition. However the family decides to spend that two or three week vacation, the new sights and experiences can be frightening and confusing — or exciting and meaningful to the pre-school child.

The pre-schooler who has some idea of what he will see and what he will encounter on vacation will enjoy the trip far more than the one who is uprooted from his familiar surroundings with no more warning than "We're going on vacation". And it is the wise parent who knows that preparing the pre-school child for a trip will make the vacation more fun and relaxing for the whole family.

Playschool Research recommends preparing the child for the trip in advance and suggests these steps for explaining the "how" and "what" of the vacation trip to the youngster:

Show him, on a map, his home city and the vacation area. Tell him about differences in climate or customs. If there are older children in the family too, learning about the vacation area in advance can become a family project.

Show him pictures of some of the things he will see — a lake and a boat, the Statue of Liberty, a swimming pool, mountains or a cable car. If the trip includes a visit to seldom-seen relatives in a far-away city, pictures of Uncle George or Cousin Susan will help him overcome shyness at meeting new people.

Tell him how he will be traveling — family car, plane, train, boat — and explain any restrictions that will be necessary for everyone in the family such as seat belts on airplanes and "sitting still" on trains and cars.

Relate some of his toys to the trip. With a puzzle plaque map of the U.S., for example, he can learn while playing to locate his own state and those he will visit. With wooden trains, planes, or a toy cart like the airlines use to transport baggage from plane to terminal, he can "imagine" himself into the situation. With his blocks, he can "build" the motel or cottage where he will stay.

Let him help with the packing. If possible, let him have his own small suitcase for his clothes. Explain to him why certain clothes are necessary — "You'll need your sweater because it's cool at the lake", or "You can wear this when we eat dinner in the restaurant".

Let him take along one or two of his favorite toys. They will mean "home" to him in an unfamiliar situation and will give him something to play with enroute.

Buy one or two new toys for him in advance of the trip. Even on vacations, there are hours when "there's nothing to do" and a new playtool will be more meaningful for him than a souvenir of the vacation spot.

When a pre-schooler understands that he, too, is helping to plan the trip, the vacation will become more memorable for the family, for everyone is sure to capture some of the special "first" wonder and excitement that only a pre-schooler can share.

Beware the Treacherous Breezes . . .

At the beach, aboard a boat or on waterskiis, summer breezes are cool, comfortable and wonderful for your disposition.

Unfortunately, they are less than kind to your skin.

For years, skin specialists and beauty experts have cautioned women against deep, drying aunts. Yet they say scarcely a word about the summer winds that plague today's active women.

Windburn, a recognized skin care problem in winter, is just as troublesome through the summer months. Those refreshing winds that blow off the ocean or lake can make your skin raw, rough and weatherbeaten.

Water, you see, is your skin's best friend. The skin's surface is kept soft by water from within, which is released slowly through an underlayer of the skin. Your skin's own oils act as agents for controlling the release of this necessary moisture. When the natural oils are removed by too much wind, your skin loses its youthful, moist look.

Breezes also pose another, subtler, kind of threat. Your skin cannot build up a tolerance to wind as it can to sunlight. If it is not continually protected from windburn, it can suffer the same damage in mid-August as in mid-May.

CULOTTES give active little girls the fashion look with comfort. In cool linen, the pantdress slays neat and fresh looking. Here, in lively navy with crisp white collar, low-slung belt and tiny buttons. White openwork knee socks are the perfect balance for the short-skirted culottes.

Each morning, before you go out, coat your skin lightly but thoroughly with a film of petroleum jelly. ("Vaseline" is fine). This emollient, inexpensive and versatile, forms a fine translucent shield against drying winds. After smoothing it on, you can tissue off the excess. The tiny amount of petroleum jelly that remains will give your skin excellent windburn protection.

If you're spending the entire day out of doors, you'll want to reapply the petroleum jelly at intervals. Since it comes in handy tubes as well as the familiar medicine chest jars, you can easily tuck it in your beachbag.

Incidentally, husbands and children appreciate the windburn protection of petroleum jelly, too. Their hands, cheeks and chins need a light, comfortable coat of the emollient.

You may have been one of the careful gardeners who did a thorough job of "laying up" your equipment. Then you're all ready to go.

Fish to Picket Sunglasses As "Unfair"?

If fish could talk, they probably would be complaining about a new sunglasses that enables anglers to see under water right down to their favorite aquatic spots.

Usually fish can count on the blinding sheen of sun-on-water to hide them from a fisherman's view. This glare is so harsh, so brilliant, that sunglasses that merely darken light don't really help the anglers much at all.

But now, equipped with new sunglasses called "Sportsmaster", fishermen are able to see right through the glare barrier that used to hide fish from view. They can follow the action of their line and lure, they can watch the fish approach, they can even watch the strike.

The glasses are terrifying the fish for two reasons. This sunglasses has lenses which optically eliminate blinding reflected glare through a unique molecular construction that enables only vertically vibrating light — useful light — to pass through to the anglers' eyes. By halting horizontally vibrating light they wipe out that fierce sheen of sun-on-water.

According to the manufacturer, "Sportsmaster" doesn't stop there. Not content with eliminating reflected glare, the makers decided to deal with direct, overhead glare, too. So they added an exclusive visor to their sunglasses, a shield against the noon-day sun that used to bother everyone but mad dogs and Englishmen.

BOATING SAFETY

Recreational boating is one of the safest outdoor sports. There are few accidents and even fewer serious injuries and fatalities. But since there is still an element of risk, no matter how small, boat owners are reminded to conduct a safety countdown before each cruise.

A safety check list suggested by an oil products company in a booklet covers these eight important points:

- Check the weather conditions expected.
- Tell someone on shore where you are going and when you expect to arrive.
- Check your compass and lay out a course.
- Test lights, horn, all engines and clutches.
- Are there enough life preservers and are they in good condition?
- See to it that the anchor is ready to go and that it is well secured to the boat.
- Look over your first aid kit. Is it completely stocked?
- Have you all the fuel and oil you will need?

When you are okay on all these points, and only then, you are ready to go.

The booklet, Safety Afloat, is offered by Mobil Oil Corporation.

SUMMER BARGAINS

If your vacation budget's straining at all the extra things you need — children's playclothes, swimwear, equipment for outdoor living — check your local Goodwill Industries before despairing. Shops feature a vast selection of bargain-priced, almost-new apparel and miscellaneous items, all repaired and refinished by skilled handicapped workers who restore donated merchandise.

DOG 'MOTORING'? CODE OF THE ROAD

The "no pets allowed" rule has been relaxed at many motels. At least one motel chain advertises special accommodations for pet guests. Some managers consider pets a good credit reference. One manager was quoted in a motel trade journal as saying, "I don't recall having a guest here with a pet who left without paying his bill".

No one should expect a pet to pay the bill, but the Pet Food Institute advises that you should be extra conscientious about your pet's manners when he goes vacationing.

This dog owner's "code of the road" will help you assure a welcome for your pet:

- When you stop at a motel or hotel, don't try to smuggle your dog into your room. Be honest. Tell the manager you will be responsible for your pet's behavior.
- Take along your dog's bed or a rug for him to sleep on. Do not allow him to lounge on the beds or chairs in the room.
- To avoid accidents caused by an upset stomach, take a supply of your dog's favorite dog foods. Avoid giving him doggy-bag scraps and rich snacks.
- Put several layers of newspapers under his food and water bowls.
- Exercise him off the premises, never near lawns or shrubbery. Swimming pool and playground areas are off limits, too.
- Always walk your dog on a leash. Don't let him run loose.
- The best behaved dog may misbehave in a strange place. Put your dog in your car when you go out to dinner or on a sight-seeing tour.
- Carry a certificate from a veterinarian stating that your dog is in good health and has been inoculated for rabies. You will be complying with state and local regulations in many areas.

By observing these courtesies, your own trip will be more pleasant.

Many experts predict that the Midi length will not come in strong until Fall. Then, it will be worn with ruffled blouses or shirts and high boots.

Refresh and Guard Your Complexion

Summer sun, salt water, sand and outdoor activities take a heavy toll on the complexion. Also, such exposure has a way of creeping up.

The tendency on a vacation is to forget the routine and adopt a carefree attitude. Generally speaking, this is a sound approach but where the complexion is concerned, damage may occur that will take months of special attention to remedy.

The best way to remember your complexion and thus, guard against over exposure to the elements, is to pack your home facial beauty appliance along with the fish tackle and swim suits.

The Saunda Facial Sauna, for instance, is a lightweight, portable beauty appliance which will be ready at a moment's notice.

It is to quickly care for your complexion. It can be used on any location where an electrical outlet is available and requires only 1½ ounces of tap water to become operative.

You can take a facial with this "beauty machine" in the relaxing atmosphere of vacation cabin or yacht, wherever you may be. As the warm mist deep — cleanses your pores through the flow of perspiration, your facial tissues receive the benefit of renewed circulation and under-skin nourishment to produce a vital, glowing complexion.

The next step in a vacation facial is to thoroughly remove the impurities driven outward by the flow of perspiration by generously applying the facial scrub which contains beauty grains.

Next, you will want to apply a few drops of freshener. This will give your skin an exhilarated feeling and close the pores which have been opened by the warm, moist mist treatment.

Now use plenty of moisturizer because the sun and wind tend to deplete the facial tissues.

SEA SIRENS in swimsuits styled for sunny beaches. A bikini in a soft, supple knit fabric of texture-set nylon; in a multi-color Teakwood print, it is quick drying, has a soft, silken feeling. For swimming and after, suit with tank top, boy shorts and a matching skirt.

DOs & DON'Ts FOR SUN-TANNING

- DO's
 1. Check your Skin Type
Is your skin normal, sun-sensitive or sun-resistant? If normal, you'll sunburn readily, tan rapidly. Sensitive skin sunburns easily, tans slowly. If your skin is sun-resistant, you will sunburn slowly but tan quickly.
 2. Check your Locale
Where are you? The sun's rays are stronger near water than in grassy areas; far more intense at high altitudes; much stronger in the South than in the North.
 3. Check the Time of Day
Are you an early bird? Before 9 A.M. there's practically no tanning action. The sun's intensity builds up rapidly between 9 and 11 A.M. Watch yourself from 11 to 1 P.M., the time of the sun's greatest intensity. Between 1 and 3 P.M. there'll be intensive sunray action; after 3, practically no tanning action.
 4. Check the Weather
Is it a clear day? You'll get the best tan. Be careful on a hazy day; moisture reflects the sun's rays so avoid overexposure. Foggy or cloudy weather means little chance of getting a tan.
 5. Check the Right Sunscreen Product for You
If you prefer a clear, non-oily liquid the cleanest, neatest way to apply a sunscreen — then Bronztan Clear Lotion is recommended for you. One of the most effective sunscreens yet known, it dries rapidly so sand won't stick — and protects even after swimming.

- If your skin is dry or sensitive, you'll probably prefer a Cream Lotion which offers high protection and softens and moisturizes tender skin.
- If you're a true beachnik, a quick tanner, someone who lives at the beach, then you should try Bronztan Moisturizing Lotion. Use it the whole sun-season through to smooth, moisturize and soften sun-wind-weather-exposed skin. And it helps to prevent drying, peeling, flaking.
- DON'Ts
 1. Don't Over-do the First Day
Don't stay in the sun too long the first day. The secret of a beautiful bronze tan is to take the sun slowly and sensibly.
 2. Don't be fooled by a Hazy Day
Don't be lulled into a sense of false security by a gray day. Your chances of burning are the greatest so keep your skin protected and avoid overexposure.
 3. Don't Sun at All if Supersensitive
If your skin has little pigmentation to develop a tan or if you are allergic to the sun's rays, stay away from it!
 4. Don't Just Lie There — Do Something!
Take advantage of your sun-tanning time with healthful beautifying exercises. Take along your transistor radio and you can keep in shape to music!

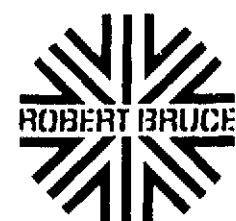

The so-called "alpha test" was an intelligence test originally used in the U.S. Army in World War I.

Smart Vacation! a Change of Scene at Home

TODAY'S HOME LANDSCAPE is not only designed to enhance the beauty of the house, but also to provide the family with a relaxing setting. Such an area can be included in the master landscape plan prepared by a professional nurseryman.

LANDSCAPE DREAMS COME TRUE

A built-in barbecue fireplace; an over-sized, secluded patio for entertaining; a place for badminton; a rock garden; and two trees at just the right distance for the hammock and some old fashioned relaxing — who hasn't had dreams such as these when moving into a new home?

These ideals and dreams can become realities, especially when the planning is placed in the hands of a professional.

Sometimes, though, homeowners shy away from the "professional." "Our place is not an estate; surely it will be too small to be considered by a landscape designer." These are some of the reasons they give.

But this is not true. Almost every day, nurserymen are advising homeowners and planting home grounds that are modest in size and in typical suburban areas. Nurserymen realize that the small home grounds will sometimes have problems even more difficult to solve than those found on estates. But they also know that there are solutions and they can put their experience and knowledge of design and plants to good use.

Nurserymen will always advise homeowners to prepare a master plan of the entire home grounds before any planting is started. This can be quite elaborate, or sometimes just a simple sketch to act as a guide for creating the setting desired. Very often just a half-hour visit with a nurseryman will result in the solution to all home landscape problems. Providing him with certain information, however, will make the task even more elementary.

One of the most important things to bring when seeing your nurseryman is an accurate measurement of the size of the property, house, garage, etc. The landscape experts at the American Association of Nurserymen suggest that the entire plot be sketched on a piece of graph paper. By using the squares to represent a unit of measure — such as a foot — the exact location and size of the house, drives, walks and boundary lines can be filled in.

The next step is to place on your graph paper the location of any existing trees or shrubs, even if you feel they should be removed from the final design — your nurseryman may have other ideas. If the names of the plants are unknown, bring along a twig, small branch or some leaves and he will be able to identify it.

Some snapshots of the house and lot — close up and from a distance — will also be helpful to the AAN nurseryman as a guide to designing the area and selecting plants. The photographs may not be too beautiful, but think of the fun it will be comparing these "before" pictures with those you take of the landscape fully planted.

Finally, the AAN nurseryman will ask many questions about you and what "dreams" you have for your home landscape. You will certainly have many recreation features in mind, and the landscape designer will also want to include your favorite plants.

With the proper information about your home and property, plus your garden desires, it is surprising how a professional can mold them together into a beautiful setting just made for relaxing in the hammock strung between those strategic-cally placed trees — that is until someone puts a badminton racquet in your hands.

TRAVELING WITH BABY

A vacation trip with Baby can be a space race for Mother. But the space needed to pack all of Baby's clothes and equipment may be a lot less for any trip you take this summer. Modern developments in infant care have led to many disposable items that cut down considerably on suitcase space. Rental baby furniture, throw-away diapers and ready to use baby formula in disposable bottles have all come to the aid of a traveling mother.

Any trip with a baby requires a certain amount of paraphernalia, but with a little planning you can keep it down to a minimum, and make the trip much easier for you. Before you go, here are some tips:

- If you plan to visit your folks or any relatives who might not have a high chair or a crib, ask them to call a rental agency and reserve the equipment long before you plan to arrive. If the town you plan to visit doesn't have a rental agency, perhaps a neighbor would be willing to lend the equipment. A collapsible crib designed for traveling takes up almost an entire car trunk.

- Forget about doing diapers for the duration of your visit. Invest in a small supply of the disposable variety — just enough to get you where you're going. You'll be able to buy these and any of baby's other supplies wherever you go.

- Make baby feeding safer and easier by using Enfamil Nursette, the prepared, pre-sterilized formula in a pre-filled disposable glass nursing bottle. All you have to do is add a standard nipple and nipple collar. Because the unit does not have to be refrigerated, heating isn't necessary. And you won't have any worries about the safety of the formula or baby's nutrition en route.

- Pack a minimum of baby's clothing, preferably items that don't need ironing. You'll be able to launder what you do bring when you arrive, or in self-service laundry equipment along the way.

- Be sure to take the name and telephone number of Baby's doctor, and any medicines or vitamins he may be taking. You may want to pack a baby thermometer, too.

You'll find that your baby will be quite content almost any place you take him — for as long as you are there.

JUST A MINUTE. In just 60 seconds this curvaceous lady will have a color photo of herself. Or if the photographer is in a hurry, and is using black and white film, he'll be able to get her with a picture in 15 seconds. In any case, the instant photo camera is fun to use outdoors all summer, at home, or on vacation, and you know whether you have the picture you want, on the spot.

PROTECT, SOOTHE SUNBURN AREAS AND PESKY INSECT BITES

You can forget about your worries when you take off on vacation, but don't forget your skin. It's apt to be subjected to all sorts of occupational outdoor hazards . . . salted and dried by the ocean, fried to a crisp by the sun, bitten by insects and irritated by poison ivy and oak. Here are a few common sense precautions to take so that your skin can't lay you low or slow you down for even so much as a day.

Rinse yourself off well in the shower after swimming in salt water. Use a protective lotion while sunning.

If you're going picnicking, sunbathing or just sitting around outdoors, keep a small bottle of insect repellent tucked in your pocket or purse. When a low hum signals the approach of attackers, apply the repellent to all parts of you that are bare and biteable.

As for poison ivy and oak, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports that nearly two million cases a year are serious enough to require either medical attention, or at least one day of restricted activity or both. Your best course when outdoors is to give a wide berth to any plant with leaves growing in clusters of three, whether or not the plant is flush on the ground or climbing trees, fences, or light poles.

In addition to taking precautions, it's a good idea to have on hand the wherewithal for some first aid treatment. Ideal for this, since it has other vacation uses aside from settling your skin problems, is baking soda. Be sure to stow a box in your luggage.

If your tan reaches a stage where it begins to flake and itch or if you've come down with a bad fresh burn, add a cupful of baking soda to the tubful of tepid water. Submerge and soak until itch or burn subsides. Soda's mild alkaline properties cleanse as well as soothe, so refrain from using the washcloth. Rubbing will irritate your skin. Remember too, to just pat yourself dry when you emerge.

Summer's Hosiery Look Is Soft

This summer the pretty girl look has completely supplanted tough chic as the center of fashion interest. Hemlines wander from micro - mini heights to midi with major emphasis a bit above the knee. New styles in stockings are in tune with the soft, all-feminine mood of fashion.

Dainty designs in lacy textured panty hose are prime favorites, reports Betty Curry, fashion director of Burlington Hosiery. Whatever the skirt length, imaginative leg fashions in a rainbow wide range of colors are the keynote for costume planning.

Scallop, a dainty new pattern in panty hose caters to the new romantic mood, said Miss Curry. Five slim scallop stripes make this "pretty girl" design outrageously flattering from any leg angle, back or front. Scallop co-stars on the daytime or evening scene with equally potent charm . . . comes in elegant pastels like cream, pink or blue, or in dark tones: black, brown or navy. Then choose costume and shoes to complement or contrast.

Another new panty hose textured style with affinity for the "pretty girl" is Point d'Esprit. Infinitesimal pin point dots on a lacy net background achieve a delicately elegant pattern that's equally flattering in pastels or dark colors. In a totally different mood, inspired by Bonnie and Clyde fashions, is Hopscotch, a three colored textured style in Bee-Kee-Nee panty hose that's a scene stealer for daytime.

"A significant advance in new construction is Super Can-tree which achieves a new concept of stocking fit," said Miss Curry. "By upping the yarn's crimp coil potential 20 per cent, this new kind of yarn has super cling and wears a minimum of 20 per cent better." Look for it in a Cameo "Little Nothing" style.

Blue-eyed blonds with less pigment in their eyes are often more sensitive to glare than brown-eyed persons. Still others have strong natural light filters in their eyes.

CAMPER-COOK'S BAG OF TRICKS

Space and time are at a premium and her cooking utensils must play dual roles. Necessities such as plastic wrap, paper towels and aluminum foil — tucked away in a basket, ready for each and every meal — have become mainstays of the camping kitchen.

Paper towels play a multiple role in cooking for campers because towel tricks save time and effort. The head of the household will use a sheet of paper towels over the coals. When he squirts, then lights the charcoal starter over the paper towels, he'll find that the towels help distribute the starter evenly, making an even fire.

The lady camper uses the paper towels all around the camp. But beware the flimsy or rough kind. It pays to buy quality. Kleenex paper towels are strong enough for wiping out grease-coated skillets, pretty enough to be used as placemats at dinner time. Later, she'll use them to wrap glasses for the move to the next campsite.

Versatile paper towels wrap around salad greens, keeping them fresh and crisp, wipe chicken, readying it for frying, or line a basket of hot buttery rolls.

Paper towels become "serving dishes" for fruit and cheese at dessert time. When dampened, the towels clean off a not-so-spotless picnic table. They'll dry an apple, then later dry the tableware and pots and pans.

"What would we do without papertowels?" has been the cry of the campers. It's no wonder.

for the FUN of it

How about a convention that has a naval vessel nearby in case of emergencies? With a decompression chamber, yet!

Or gives these instructions on what to bring along: "Bring your own regulator if you have one, and mask, fins and snorkel... Your own weight belt, although they can be rented... You do not need a wet suit. However, some like to wear a short-sleeved wet suit jacket!"

It only comes clear when you know it's the ninth annual convention of the Underwater Society of America, those who are plunging deepest into the skin-diving hobby.

The town of St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, will be awash with underwater people, their wives and children, the week of June 23-28. The sand beaches will be full of them, as will the offshore sea itself from surface to dozens of feet underneath.

Then, the following week, the tide will flow to the Island of St. Croix nearby for a diving derby.

There's a good deal of competition for the title of "fastest growing sport" among various clans of fun hunters in our land. Bill Slosky, in his handsome new book, "Guide to the Underwater," claims it for skin-diving.

Two branches of these explorers of the deep will be represented in St. Thomas.

By far the most numerous will be the snorkelers.

The snorkel, simply, is a plastic tube held in the mouth which makes it possible to breathe, literally, behind the head. Tube sticking out of the water, it allows the swimmer to keep his face, with nose and eyes protected by a mask, constantly in the water, looking down.

Swimming in pairs for safety and always having nearby a paddleboard, surfmat or small boat—also for safety—the adventurers can sight-see, hunt fish and treasure or participate in a challenging type of submerged photography.

They are not bound to the surface. By filling the lungs and diving under, they descend to the bottom for as long as they can hold their breath, a minute or so.

Shallow coral reefs such as found off the Virgin Islands are dream scenes for snorkelers. Fish species are many. Colors are brilliant in the clear water.

More expensive, due to the equipment needed, is the other branch of diving called scuba from the first letters of "self-contained underwater breathing apparatus." Air tanks carried on the back allow free breathing and access to greater depths.

Snorkeling isn't difficult and safety rules can be learned from any book on the subject in the library. Scuba requires a course of training.

Those present at the convention will spend a minimum of time on little gold chairs in hotel meeting rooms. They will be there to dive. The program will be over by noon each day and some parts of it—good idea—will be repeated in the evening for those who were down with the fishes early that morning.

ENJOY COMFORT WHEN YOU TRAVEL — PUT FEET FIRST

Oh, my aching feet! It's the wail of tourists everywhere — especially when they're having fun and trying to see and do everything.

Estimates of how many of us get aching feet vary. Authoritative sources range from figures of seven out of 10 adults, to 60 per cent of men and 80 per cent of women experiencing foot complaints at one time or another.

The framework of the human foot consists of 26 bones that extend in length from three-eighths of an inch in the toes, to about two and one-half inches at the heel bone. Each bone is connected to the others by a very complicated system of ligaments, tendons and muscles. They furnish our feet with strength to support the weight of our bodies, as well as the flexibility needed for all the motions of walking, running or even dancing.

Did You Know

Did you know that shoes that are too loose can be as punishing to the feet as shoes that are too tight? Stockings or socks that are too small are also frequently a cause of serious discomfort.

Anyone with corns, calluses and other painful problems, should, of course, obtain prompt medical care. But on vacation — especially if you're touring and doing a lot of fancy footwork — there are some basic foot care practices that can keep you comfortable and help you enjoy your trip more fully.

Helpful Tips

Cleanliness is essential for foot health. Scrub daily with a foot brush, paying special attention to the toes and the backs of heels.

Relieve foot fatigue and burning with a good, old-fashioned soaking, even a quick one. The Pacquin people, who specialize in skin care, recommend Silk'n Satin bath oil and lotion as helps for foot maintenance, because lubricants speed softening of rough and calloused spots.

At night time, a big dollop of hand and body lotion, or especially of extra-dry skin hand cream can do wonders to make your feet soft as well as pretty.

Above all, wear the right kind of shoes for the right occasion! If you do, there will be a lot less groaning by the foot-weary traveler that, "my feet are killing me."

Fun-wear . . .

One fashion expert sees the look for summer as "soft," with a rising tempo of interest in the whole separates concept. Says he:

"Shirts, skirts and shirt dresses, marked by a sheer and soft look, will provide most of the excitement in summer sportswear. Another significant look, I feel, will be one which is very American — cool, crisp and clean-lined."

The sportswear executive of another store feels the body shirt in its various forms will trigger summer interest in other separates.

"Shirts look tremendous for spring," he said.

The oceans hold 50 quadrillion tons of salt — enough to bury all the earth's surface under a layer 500 feet thick.

BELLS ON HER FINGERS and rings on her toes . . . make plenty of music for the girl who puts her best, jeweled foot forward. Her toes will outdazzle the sun (or the moon) when she wears the Orchid Ring, a blaze of 18-karat gold, diamonds, sapphires and emeralds. The ankle bracelet will enslave 'em, too; not the chain link of the 30's but a strand of precious stones.
